

Possible Names:

Summer Solstice Festival

Summer Days

Rhythm and Sol

Sunset Shore Festival

Terms/ Illustrations:

Apex - The peak where two strokes meet to create an angle of less than 90°.

Arm - A stroke extending horizontally and diagonally from a vertical stem.

Ascender Line - The invisible line that marks the top of letters extending over capital letters.

Beak - The small projection off of an adjoining stroke, or creates a terminal at an arch's end.

Bowl - The lower part of rounded letters such as lowercase "a" or uppercase "B."

Bracket - The part of the serif that connects the stem and another stroke (creates a curve or wedge).

Counter (closed) - The complete enclosed area of a rounded letter.

Counter (open) - The partially enclosed area of rounded letters (such as "u" and "n").

Crossbar - A horizontal stroke connecting vertical strokes on either side (such as "H" or "A").

Cross Stroke - A horizontal stroke that crosses a single stem (such as "t" or "f").

Crotch - The space where two strokes meet, or where an arch meets a stem.

Descender - The vertical stem that dips below the baseline.

Ear - The small projection on the top-right side of the lower case "g" (in its binocular form).

Eye - The closed counter of a lowercase "e."

Leg - The (usually) diagonal downward stroke on the letters “k” and “R.”

Ligature - Two or more letters joined together to form a single glyph.

Link - The stroke that connects the upper and lower bowls of a lowercase “G”.

Lobe - The upper and lower bowls of an uppercase “B”.

Loop - A counter, often closed, below the baseline that connects to an upper counter via a link.

Serif - Decorative strokes that appear on stems, arms, ascenders, and descenders in a serif typeface.

Shoulder - A curved stroke extending outward and downward from the top of a stem.

Spine - The curved stroke that forms the main portion of an uppercase or lowercase “S”.

Spur - A sharp projection that extends from a stroke or stem.

Stem - The main vertical stroke or strokes of a glyph.

Stroke - The straight or curved components of a glyph that are diagonal.

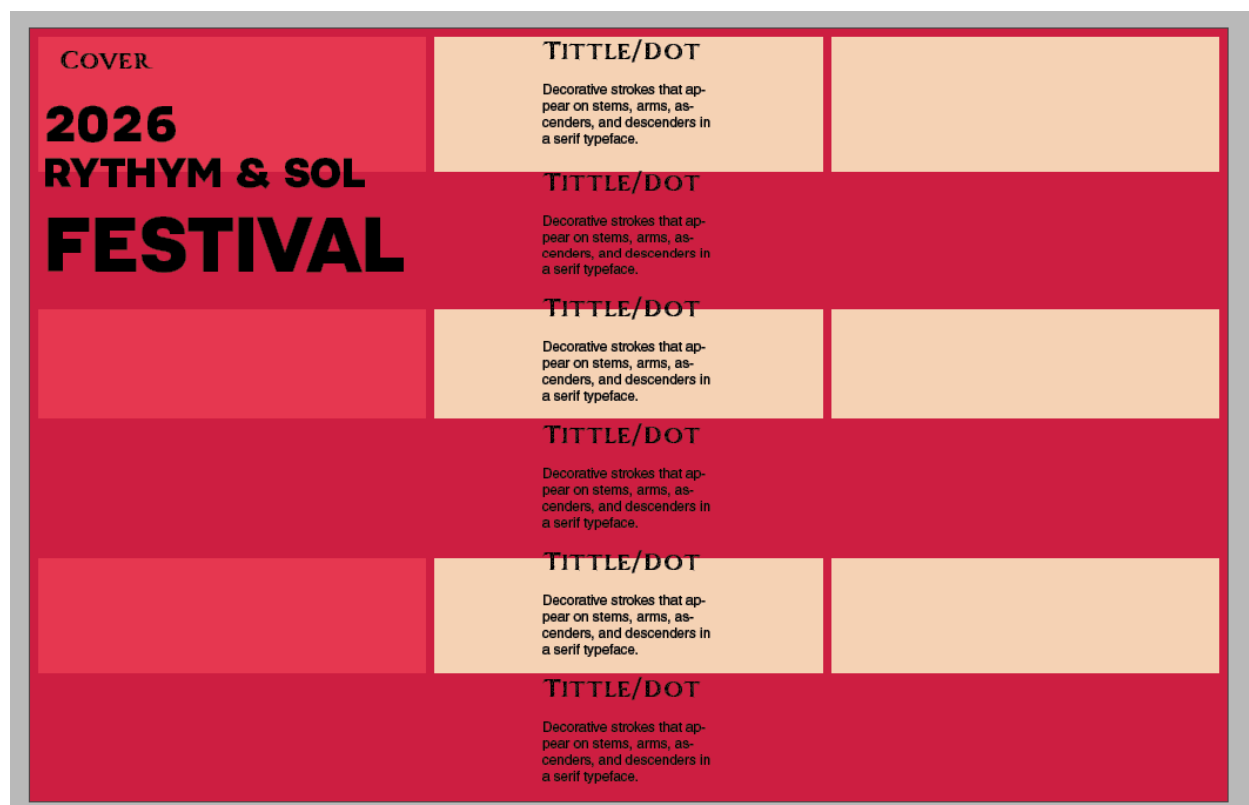

Swash - An ornamental extension added to a standard stroke, used for flourish.

Tail - A decorative descending stroke.

Terminal - A small curve that can be found at the end of a stem or stroke.

Tittle/Dot - The dot above the lowercase “i” and “j”.

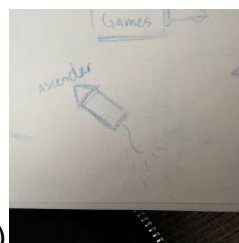

Vertex - The point where two strokes meet at the bottom of a glyph.

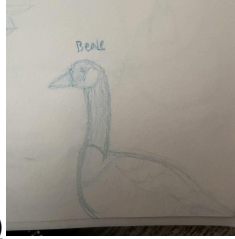

Apex - Roller coaster at peak (icon version coming soon)

Arm - Hand pointing directional sign (icon version coming soon)

Ascender - Firework (icon version coming soon)

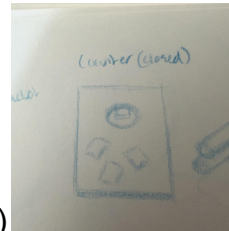

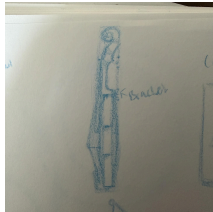

Beak - Goose (icon version coming soon)

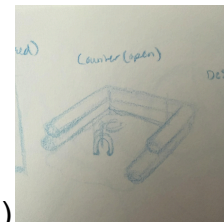

Bowl - Craft fair bowl (icon version coming soon)

Bracket - Violin connection from body to neck (icon version coming soon)

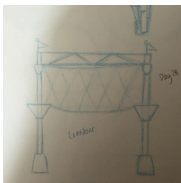

Counter (Closed) - Cornhole (icon version coming soon)

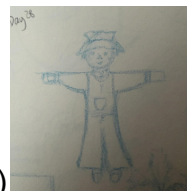

Counter (Open) - Horseshoes (icon version coming soon)

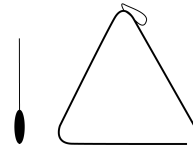

Crossbar - Tightrope obstacle course thing (forgot the name) (icon version coming soon)

Cross Stroke - Scarecrow (icon version coming soon)

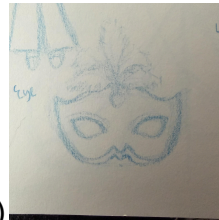

Crotch - Triangle (the instrument) (icon version coming soon)

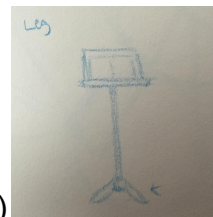

Descender - High striker (icon version coming soon)

Ear - Dunk tank board (icon version coming soon)

Eye - Masquerade masks (icon version coming soon)

Leg - Music sheet stand (icon version coming soon)

Ligature - Two intersecting Maracas

Link - Flamingo Floaty (W/ Neck Highlighted)

Lobe - Trumpet

Loop - Flamingo Floaty (W/ Body Highlighted)

Serif - Sandcastle

Shoulder - Saxophone

Spine - Palm Tree

Spur - Surfboard

Stem - Beach Umbrella

Stroke - Scuba Mask

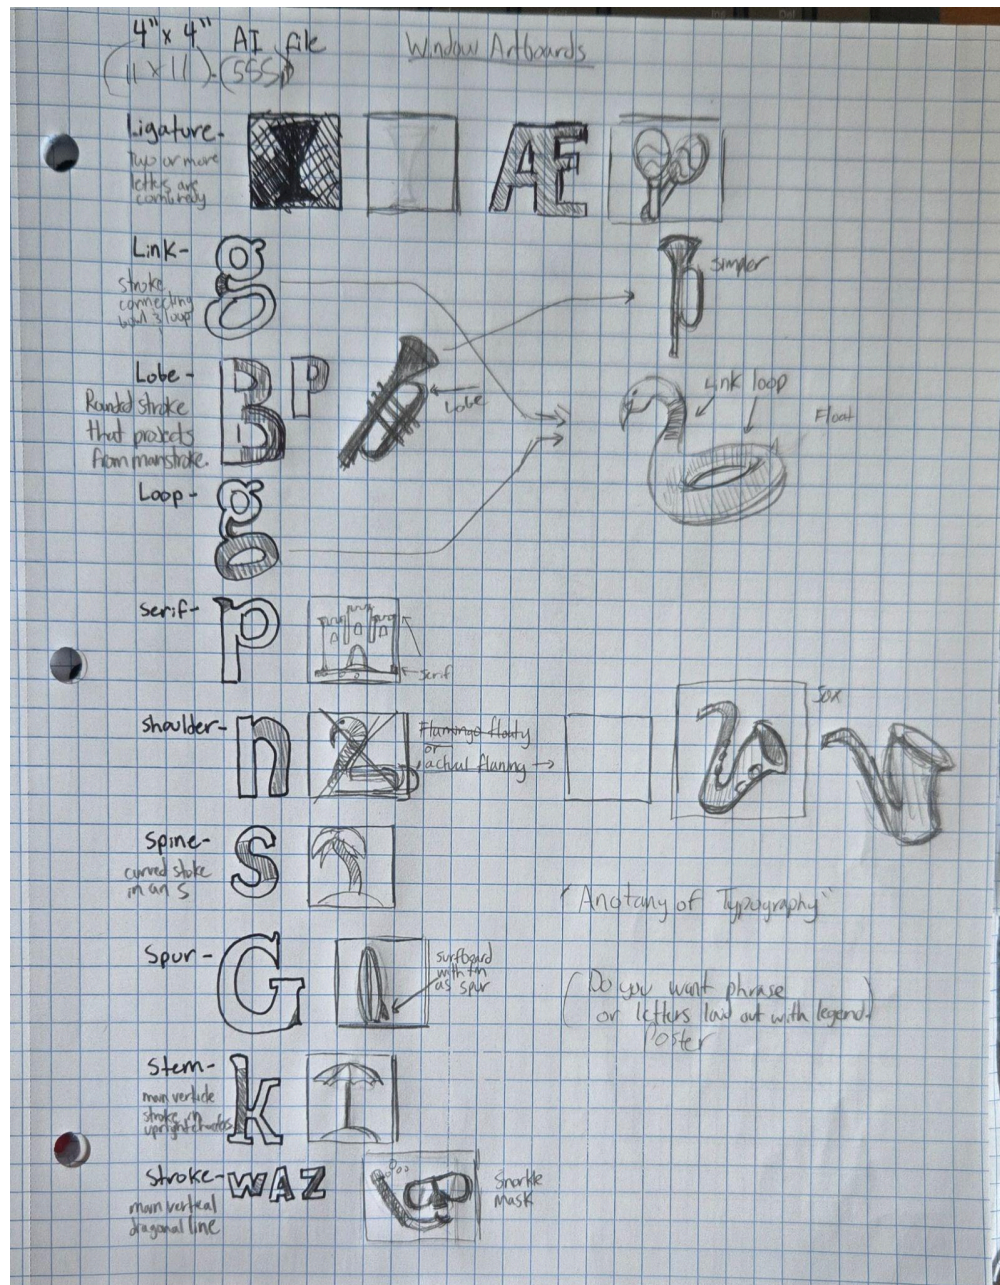

Swash - Coconut Drink

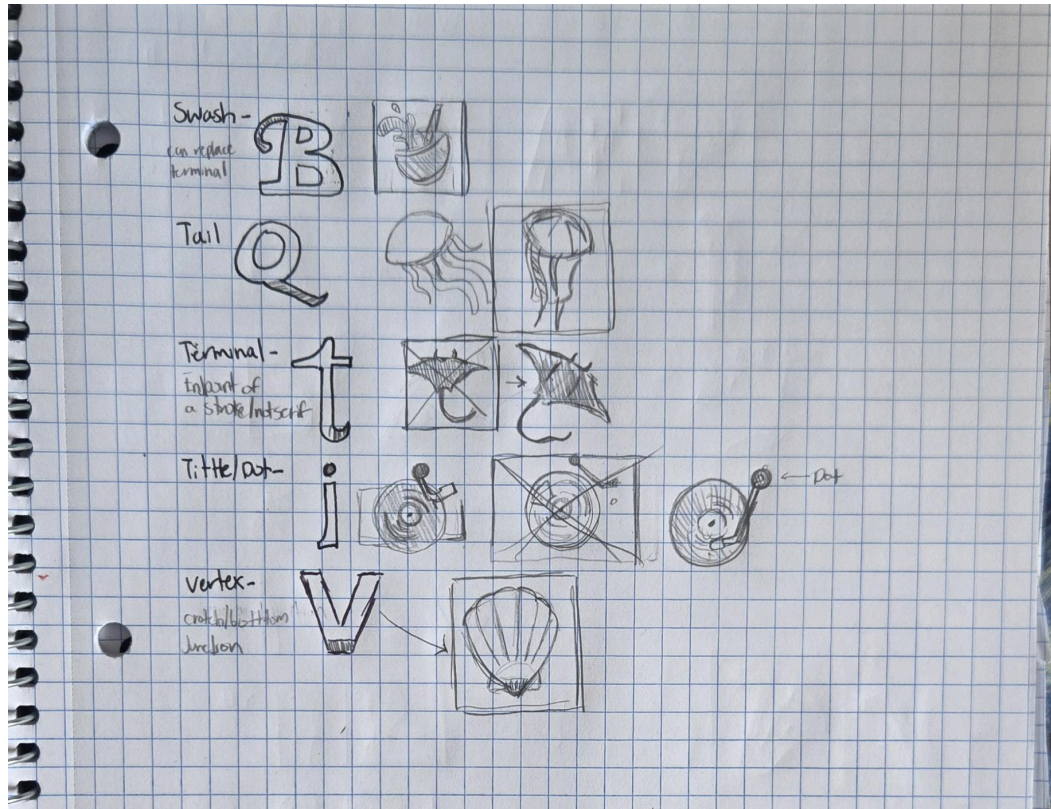

Tail - Jellyfish

Terminal - Stingray

Tittle/Dot - Vinyl Record and Needle

Vertex - Seashell

Icon Style ideation page I made in PS.

Possible Typefaces:

<https://fonts.adobe.com/fonts/jumble>

- Pacaembu Bold as H1 - <https://fonts.adobe.com/fonts/pacaembu>
- Carta Marina as Subheader - <https://fonts.adobe.com/fonts/carta-marina>
- Legible sans serif as body copy (I used a microsoft typeface as a placeholder)

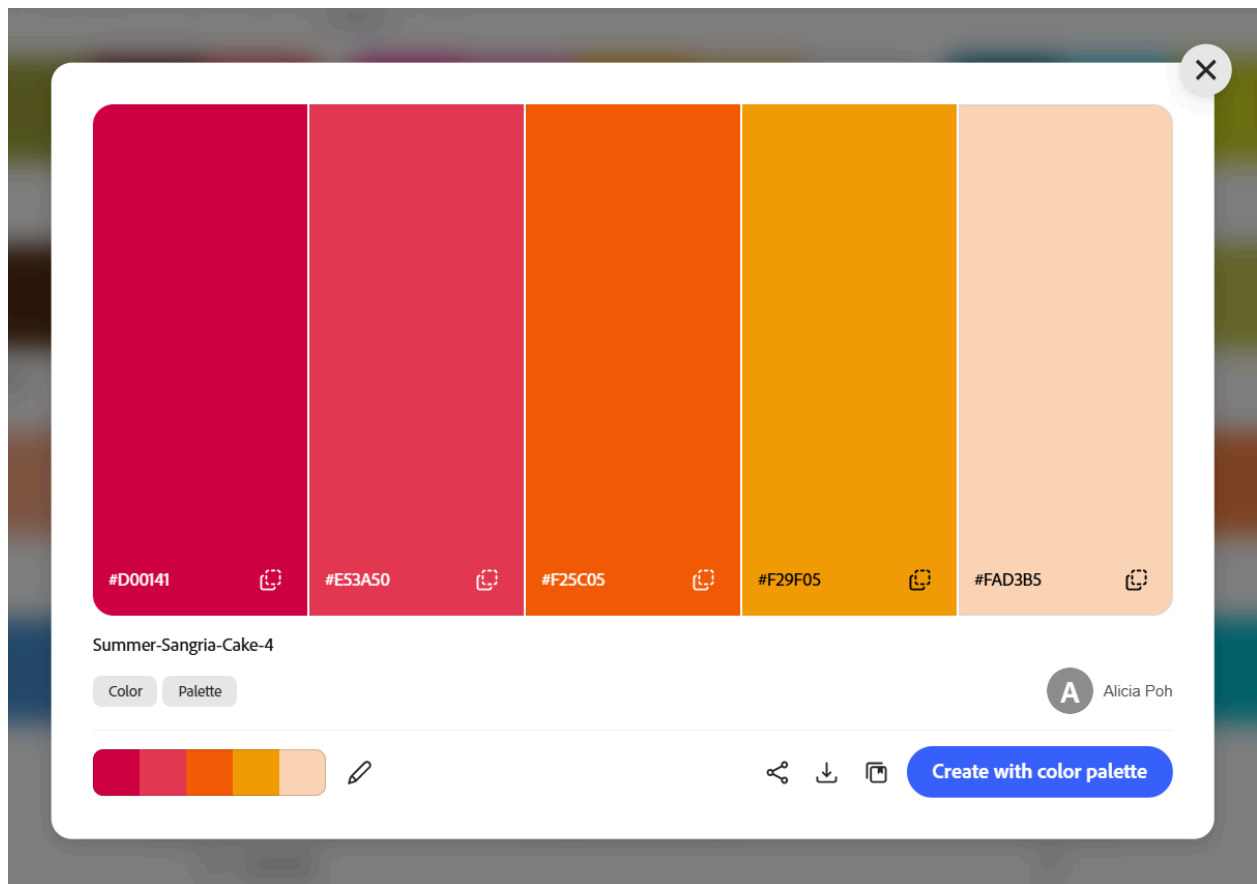

Here's a quick ideation page with a few different typefaces I made in Photoshop using primarily the Summer-Sangria-Cake-4 color palette

Color Palette Ideas:

<https://color.adobe.com/explore?q=Summer>

- Check for Summer-Sangria-Cake-4

This ^ Looks Great!^

Bare Bones Layout of our Z-Fold?: - just realized I have 15 instead of 30 - i'll fix this quickly

Mood Board

